The Harley-Davidson VR1000 is anything but ordinary. This is a pure racing icon, built with one goal in mind: winning. Developed in 1993 exclusively for the AMA Superbike championship, only 55 units were ever produced, making the VR1000 one of the rarest Harley-Davidsons in existence.

This particular example shows 0 kilometers and is in outstanding condition. Finished in the iconic black and red livery, it perfectly reflects Harley-Davidson's serious commitment to top-level racing at the time. It was never intended for the street and therefore comes without paperwork. This is a machine created solely for high-end collections, museums or serious investors.

We see the VR1000 as a bold statement. A motorcycle that tells the story of a legendary brand pushing its limits and challenging the very best on the racetrack.
