Yamaha TZR250

The Yamaha TZR250, introduced in the mid-1980s, is a true embodiment of Yamaha's two-stroke racing heritage. Inspired by Yamaha's TZ250 Grand Prix race bikes, the TZR250 was built for performance, featuring a lightweight chassis, high-revving engine, and razor-sharp handling. With its parallel-twin 249cc two-stroke engine, it quickly became a favorite among riders who wanted a street-legal machine with race-ready performance.

This 1987 TZR250 is a Japanese import, meaning it does not have an engine number, which is common for domestic market models. It remains in completely original condition, a rarity for these high-performance two-stroke bikes. Additionally, it has new tires, has recently undergone a full service, and comes with German registration papers. With 25,293 km on the clock, this bike is in excellent condition, making it a fantastic option for collectors and enthusiasts alike.

This 1987 Yamaha TZR250 is a rare opportunity to own a piece of two-stroke history. Whether you're a collector or a rider looking for a lightweight and thrilling sportbike, this TZR250 is an excellent choice. Contact us today for more details or to arrange a viewing!
